NOTICE OF JOB AVAILABILITY

TITLE: Assistant Professor

DUTIES: 70% extension (Florida Cooperative Extension Service) and 30% research (Florida Agricultural Experiment Station), available in the Agronomy Department, Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences, University of Florida. This assignment may change with the needs of the unit. Tenure will accrue in the Agronomy Department. This position will serve as Extension Forage Specialist (70%). As Extension Forage Specialist, extension programming in forage production will be conducted in close cooperation with other state-wide specialists and county extension agents, with emphasis on electronic and distance education methods. Periodic in-service training programs will be delivered to keep county extension agents informed of current technology relating to forage crops and production practices. Applied and basic research (30%) on forage-livestock production interaction with the environment and ecosystem services which may include studies on irrigation, grazing optimization, fertilization and interaction with wildlife will be conducted and results published in refereed journals, trade journals, and other appropriate media. The faculty member will actively seek contract and grant funding to support his/her program. The faculty member will actively participate in graduate education by chairing graduate committees, serving on graduate committees, supervising thesis and dissertation research, and publishing the results with his/her graduate students. Because of the IFAS land-grant mission, all faculty are expected to be supportive of and engaged in all three mission areas—Research, Teaching and Extension—regardless of the assignment split specified in the position description.
